

Recent cases

Jyoti Chohan

L v M

The claimant, a professional in the music industry, was stationary at a set of traffic lights when the defendant collided with the rear of her vehicle at high speed, pushing the claimant into the vehicle in front. The double impact was significant and the claimant's nose and face hit the steering wheel at full force. She also suffered with whiplash type symptoms and an aggravation of fibromyalgia. As a result the claimant required septoplasty and rhinoplasty treatment and suffered significant psychological trauma. We secured a swift admission of liability.

We arranged rehabilitation to assist with the claimant's extensive soft tissue injuries. Naturally, the claimant suffered a high level of distress in relation to the need for further surgery and as a result we arranged psychological treatment with a specialist who assists in counselling people prior the procedure.

The case continues.

J v M

The claimant was proceeding out of a car park when the defendant collided with the claimant's vehicle. As a consequence the claimant impact suffered extensive soft tissue injuries in addition to significant headaches and dental injuries.

We have appointed experts in neurology and dentistry to provide medical evidence. In addition we have arranged nerve conduction studies to identify the cause of ongoing referral pain.

Extensive dental work has been completed and further treatment is likely to be required in the future.

The case continues.

P v B

The claimant was indicating and pulling over to park when the defendant attempted to pass and in doing so collided with the rear his vehicle.

The injuries the claimant sustained were soft tissue injuries. Prior to the accident the claimant had a long history of pre-existing back pain, which impacted on his life. The accident aggravated this and in turn caused the claimant to suffer from erectile dysfunction. This has resulted in a breakdown in his relationship with his partner and resulted in psychological symptoms.

We are in the process of arranging extensive rehabilitation to assist the claimant in returning to his pre-accident condition.

The case continues.